

Altea Sofa

OPENING YOUR ALTEA SOFA WALL BED

1 Remove back cushions from sofa and store.

2 With a finger, pull out the bottom of one of the legs located in the space between the front panel and the structure of the bed. Lift up the leg about 30 degrees to release the safety latch.

! Do not attempt to close the bed without releasing the safety latch. If you lift the leg too far in error, pull down on the safety latch above the leg to release.

! Do not place anything underneath the sofa when bringing down the bed.

3 Grasp either one of the legs to pull the bed down.

Make sure to support the bed frame for the entire descent until both legs are resting on the floor.

NOTE: The Penelope will then be safely locked in place in the open position.

4 Release the two mattress straps by squeezing the center of the clasp.

Tuck the straps under the mattress.

5 See you in the morning!

! Do not stand or jump on the bed or the sofa.

SAFELY OPERATING YOUR ALTEA SOFA BED

CLOSING YOUR ALTEA SOFA WALL BED

! Do not force the bed closed. Always release the safety latches before attempting to close the bed.

1 Remove bed pillows and tuck bedding in on all sides around and under the mattress.
Latch both mattress straps over the bedding.

2 Release one of the safety latches. Stand at the foot of the bed at either corner. Using one hand, apply gentle downward pressure on the bed while pushing down on one of the release levers with the other hand. You do not have to release both latches.

Once properly released, the bed will be easy to lift. If you feel any resistance, let go and repeat step 2.

3 Continue to lift bed frame as you walk forward toward wall. The sofa will rise as the bed frame closes.

Push bed frame into structure until you hear both safety latches above the legs “click” into place. This indicates that the bed is now fully locked.

NOTE: Your Altea Sofas designed so that most bedding can remain on the bed when closed. If you experience any difficulty closing the bed, your bedding might be too thick.
